FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

NUCLEAR FILM FESTIVAL AT U.S.D. OCTOBER 16

The First Annual Nuclear Film Festival will be held at the University of San Diego, on Sunday, October 16. Twelve films concerning the nuclear arms race, including "War Without Winners," "The Last Epidemic," and "No Frames, No Boundaries," will be shown without breaks, Professor Robert L. Simmons of the School of Law stated.

The film festival, which takes place at the Camino Theatre, begins at 1:00 p.m. and ends at 8:00 p.m. Simmons said the film festival will become an annual event that will call attention to the hazards of an intentional or accidental nuclear war. Festival sponsors include the Peace Resource Center, CEAN, the Peace and Justice Commission of the Catholic Diocese, Pacific SANE and SAND. SAND is a student organization at the University of San Diego supporting nuclear disarmament. Simmons is the faculty advisor.

Admission is $3 for adults, $2 for students and seniors. The price of admission entitles ticketholders to see all or part of the 7-hour presentation. Tickets are available at the Camino Theatre box office or by mail. Call U.S.D., 265-0730 for information and mail-order tickets.
